

MaternaMind Chat Transcript

Exported: 20260222_101026

You:

hey there

Assistant:

Hello! It looks like you're working on a postpartum depression (PPD) detection and support system—great focus on a critical issue. The retrieved documents highlight some strong elements of your approach, like:

1. Multimodal Inputs: Using questionnaires (like the EPDS), wearables, voice journals, and health history for comprehensive screening [source p.1].
2. Safety & Ethics: Judges appreciate clear crisis detection (e.g., self-harm language), escalation protocols, and disclaimers about AI not being a diagnostic tool [source p.3].
3. Clinical Integration: Your use of risk scoring, ICD mapping, and outputs for doctors/patients/family shows real-world applicability [source p.2].

Quick tip: Emphasize the Edinburgh Postnatal Depression Scale (EPDS) as your core screening tool—it's widely recognized [source p.3].

If you're seeking support for yourself or someone with PPD, please reach out to a healthcare provider or crisis hotline if there's immediate concern. Let me know if you'd like help refining any part of your project!

(Note: The documents don't cover medical advice, only project feedback.)

You:

Hello there

Assistant:

Hello! How can I support you today?

(Note: The retrieved documents discuss a PPD detection system for a hackathon but don't contain medical advice. If you're seeking postpartum mental health help, let me know—I can guide you to resources.)